5:30 pm

Hollins University
Theatre Department

The Hollins Theatre Department is a diverse, creative community engaged in the development of theatre artists, thinkers, and leaders looking to change the future of American theatre. With a focus on the development of holistic artist/scholars, the program encourages students to learn through theory and applied practice in production.

Eleanor D. Wilson Museum
at Hollins University
Location: Atrium

The Eleanor D. Wilson Museum is the academic art museum for Hollins University. Each year, EDWM presents 10-15 exhibitions including shows organized in-house and traveling exhibits from regional arts organizations and nationally recognized institutions. The Museum which began in 2004, is a vital, welcoming, and accessible resource for object-based, hands-on learning opportunities. Whether you want to pursue scholarship or enjoy new ways of looking at art, we hope to see you in the museum! Join us to create a postcard to send to someone special using small hand-cut linoleum blocks.

Local Colors
Location: Atrium

Local Colors celebrates cultural heritages from around the globe, fosters inclusion, and builds multicultural understanding through events, education, and service.

Salem History Museum

Visit the Salem Museum booth to learn more about the history and culture of the Roanoke Valley. Hold historic artifacts that bring local history to life.

Olin Hall Galleries

Open Workshop to create collaborative collages and paintings to promote "Curator Off Duty" C.O.D. is an open exhibition for all Virginian artists. This exhibition invites any and all artists to submit a work of art to be shown at Olin Hall Galleries. The only curatorial Criteria is that each submission must fit within one cubic foot. This Exhibition aims to unite the Virginia visual arts community through diversity and inclusion.

Roanoke Baroque

Go For Baroque! Roanoke Baroque will share instruments to try your hand playing, performers to demonstrate them, and stories about the wonderful music of the 18th century!
